

From the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, of which the Star is a member, we have received a summary of 1953 operations by the first pine newsprint mill to be established in the South—the Southland mill which began operations at Lufkin, Texas, the spring of 1940.

Southland Paper Mills, Inc., was organized a couple of years earlier by E. L. Kurth, Texas lumberman, and a large number of Southern newspaper publishers aided by a loan from the federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The RFC loan just ago was paid off and Southland has been on a dividend basis for a number of years.

Here is President Kurth's report on 1953 operations in summary. In 15th annual report of the South's first pine newsprint mill—one of the nation's outstanding industrial exploits:

Production of newsprint for the year 1953 was 132,950 tons. The total production of both newsprint and Kraft Board amounted to 158,504 tons. Shipments for the year totaled 158,504 tons, with a total dollar value of $19,923,420, or $294,955 more than the dollar value of shipments during 1952.

Earnings before taxes amounted to $7,038,140, of which the Lumber Division earned $248,663. Total earnings per share of stock before taxes amounted to $17.14. After deducting $4,465,000 reserve for taxes, or 58 per cent of the total earnings, there was left $7.20 per share net earnings for stockholders. The net earnings were 74 cents per share higher than in 1952.

During 1952 the company acquired 70 per cent of the outstanding stock of a lumber company for $11,937,000. The balance of the stock of the company was acquired by Champion Paper and Fibre Company. During 1953 the company was liquidated and the land divided in proportion to the percentage of the stock ownership of the two companies. Southland acquired title to 199,320 acres, which, added to lands they had acquired in previous years, gives them a total of 343,874 acres of timberland.

The forestry improvement program has continued on an accelerated scale. In the 1953-54 season they expect to plant, or give to small owners for planting, one million seedlings. During 1953, 1,000,000 board feet of hardwood lumber was sold. Only a small amount of pine pulpwood was harvested from the company's holdings. It is the belief that within another five years the company will have an average growth per acre of two-thirds to three-fourths of a cord of pine wood annually.

In 1952, there was established the Southland Paper Mills Foundation. Last year an additional amount of $225,000 was set aside out of earnings (the actual cost to each shareholder being about 9 cents per share). The Foundation funds can only be used for educational or charitable purposes. Mr. Kurth expressed the opinion that this is one of the finest things the Southland has ever created, and the cost to shareholders, because of the high tax bracket, will be negligible.

Production employees for last year averaged 837. Wages and salaries exclusive of administrative amounted to $3,730,473, or an average annual earning per employee of $4,457. Hourly paid employees averaged $1.90 per hour, or more than $83 per week. Group insurance, including both life and hospitalization, is being continued. The total life insurance on all employees now amounts to approximately $4,800,000, or an average of better than $5,400 per employee. In addition to these benefits, the company has installed a pension plan as of January 1, 1954. This benefit is paid for wholly by the company.

In concluding the report Mr. Kurth said he feels that Southland has nothing to fear in the way of a recession or less demand for its products than they have had in past years. He also expressed the belief that this year should be a better profit year than they have had since 1950.

Leave TV Sets Alone Is Advice

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Fire protection expert Emmett T. Cox of Chicago, said yesterday that death or destruction of the home by fire may result from a handyman's attempt to fix a TV set.

Cox, a member of the Western Actuarial Fire Bureau, told the sixtieth annual Arkansas Fire Department instructors Training Conference here that "television sets are perfectly safe if you don't try to remove the back of them."

"Trying to fix the TV set may bring you in to fix the TV with $50.00 to 75,000 volts of stored up electricity," he told the conference.

He cited a recent case where a man was killed while working on a set that had been unplugged for six months and two days.

Another, speaker W. A. Turner of Little Rock, a state fire instructor in the State Department of Education paid tribute to volunteer fire departments.

The two-day conference ends today.

Mrs. Simington Believes Father Was Killed

TEXARKANA (AP)—After a day of testimony which centered around the death of Mrs. Opal Simington's father, the federal court trial of Mrs. Simington and H. C. Seals of Umpire, Ark., went into its second day here.

Mrs. Simington, a former assistant cashier at the defunct Bank of Dierks, and Seals, a depositor, are charged in connection with a $185,000 shortage at the bank.

Seals, a 64-year-old farmer, is charged specifically with writing a check for $4,356.80 without having bank funds to cover it, and Mrs. Simington with cashing it for him.

Yesterday's testimony was highlighted by a statement of Alonzo Cannaday, bank examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Cannaday testified that Mrs. Simington had once identified Seals as "the man who murdered my daddy."

Cannaday said Mrs. Simington made the statement in August, 1952, during his examination of the bank's records.

Asst. U. S. District Attorney Henry Britt admitted the statement for the record over objections of defense attorneys. Britt said the alleged statement "may later prove material in the bank trial."

In an interview with newsmen after the trial recessed for the day, Mrs. Simington denied she made the statement, saying only that "I told Mr. Cannaday that Mr. Seals lived near where my daddy was murdered near Baker Springs, Ark."

Mrs. Simington said the body of her father, the late Roy Epperson of Dierks, was found in a creek at Baker Springs in 1937 the former Dierks attorney was a candidate for Howard County sheriff at the time of his death. A coroner's verdict ruled Epperson died of drowning. But Mrs. Simington told newsmen she suspected he was murdered.

Seals' attorneys contended that at no time did Seals intend to defraud the bank. "Future testimony will prove that when Mr. Seals determined the money was not his, he returned the amount of the withdrawal to the bank in August, 1952," said defense attorney Will Atkins.

On the trial's opening yesterday, Britt told the jury of 10 men and two women that Seals had only $4.49 in his account when the check was cashed.

Mrs. Simington's attorney, Ben Shaver, replied that his client was ordered by Thomas Westbrook to cash Seals' check.

Westbrook, 74-year-old ailing former vice president and cashier of the bank, also has been charged in the shortage but a heart condition has prevented his being brought to trial.

Mrs. Simington is scheduled to be tried tomorrow on a separate charge of embezzling purloining and willfully mis applying bank funds.

She recently was acquitted of a state charge in Little River Circuit Court and a state charge against Westbrook was dismissed in a one-day trial.

Other state charges are pending against Mrs. Simington and Westbrook.

Just a Few Timely Tips That a Wary Tourist in the Tropics Should be on Lookout For

By HAL BOYLE
ABOARD THE MAURETANIA
(AP)—A pleasure cruise is a pleasant one.

But on a voyage to the West Indies you also run the risk of catching an insidious tropical malady.

The wary tourist will watch out particularly for one of the following disabling ailments:

1. Lobster flush. This results from lying too long on the deck under a hot sun in the vain hope that you can return home with a burn almost tan. Who really wants to look like a nut?

2. Postcard paralysis. Why get writer's cramp writing scores of postcards back to friends saying, "boy, this is the life," or, "Wish you were here." Is it wise to stir up their envy you may not want

FILES AS CANDIDATE

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—D. S. Plummer of Marianna yesterday filed as a candidate for Fifth District chancery to oppose incumbent A. L. Hutchins of Forrest City.

By CLANCY SIGAL

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Eerie screams that "sounded like a cat but only more so," sent police officers into a wooded area north of downtown Los Angeles today searching for a vicious black panther.

Two policemen heard the screams several times after they were summoned to the area by a man trembling with fright. Officers who had been searching in a residential section about four miles away, where the missing 140-pound "killer cat" was reported seen last night, were called in on the new search.

Patrolmen M. N. Alexander and R. E. Brown sent out a call for reinforcements at about 4 a. m. today only minutes after they answered the call of a frightened man. Moments after the man told them of hearing "a terrible cat-like scream" from a clump of nearby trees, the officers reported, they, themselves, heard a scream.

"We heard an awful screeching and it was close," Alexander said. "It sounded like the scream of an injured cat."

Officers armed with shotguns plunged into the wooded area but failed to flush the giant black cat.

The animal, pound for pound one of the most vicious of all jungle beasts, was reported yesterday to have escaped from a traveling carnival.

Police who combed the area where it was reported seen last night were spurred by a warning from the panther's owner, Wayne Roberts.

"Don't fool with this baby and don't try to capture him alive," Roberts said. "He's uncompromisingly vicious... shoot him on sight."

Some 150 policemen, armed with shotguns, searched alleys, yards and streets for the black cat. At least six officers reported seeing the panther since it was first spotted in an alley after 9 p. m. last night.

Other officers, however, expressed doubt the panther could have been at large in the city three days without being seen. They said the other policemen may have mistaken another large animal for the panther in the darkness last night.

The first report came about five hours after a carnival owner reported the panther had escaped from its cage Friday.

Most residents of the neighborhood watched the search from behind closed windows, and police warned citizens to stay out of the area.

Can Officially Measure Cotton Acres

Hempstead County cotton producers may arrange for official measurement of their 1954 farm acreage allotment prior to planting time the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced this week.

To get the premeasurement service, which is being provided on a cost basis, a farmer must file a request with the county ASC office prior to April 5th.

The rate to be charged for the service in Hempstead County has been established at $6.00 per farm, plus $0.30 per acre of cotton allotment for the farm, and payment the time the request for measurement is filed.

The premeasurement service is optional with the farmer and is offered only as a service to growers who prefer to have an official measurement to use a planting guide.

All cotton acreage on which a request is filed, will be measured as soon as possible after the cotton comes up, to determine compliance with the acreage allotment and marketing quota program.

When compliance is checked the farm will be considered to be within the farm acreage allotment if the crop is planted within the premeasured area.

All cotton producers in Hempstead County desiring to have their allotment premeasured should contact the county ASC office prior to April 5th.

Included in the cast Jo Ann Daugherty, Mary Dudeney, Ruth Erwin, Virginia Rosenbaum, Helen Smith, Ronnie Conatser, Herbert Biddle, Rufus Smith, Preston Shy and Roy Fry.

Worst Attack of Indochina War Underway

By JEANE BARRE

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—"Unbelievable" Communist artillery cut off Dien Bien Phu's two airports today and its besieged 10,000-man French garrison fighting against odds of four to one.

French commanders admitted the worst was yet to come in the biggest perhaps most decisive battle of the seven-year Indochina war.

Communist hordes estimated at 40,000 men, pressed their ground offensive, ignoring their own dead piled against Dien Bien Phu's barbed wire defenses.

Some of the Reds made "human bombs" of themselves, hurling dynamite around their chests.

Chavez May Be Unseated by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rules Committee decided today to ask the Senate to vote on whether to unseat Sen. Chavez (D-NM).

The committee voting on straight party lines, adopted 5-4 an investigating subcommittee report which recommended that the 1952 New Mexico senatorial election be voided because of "flagrant" irregularities.

Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war, was the Republican candidate in the election.

The subcommittee said there was an "appalling" lack of secrecy and other transgressions during the balloting.

If Chavez were unseated New Mexico's Republican governor, Edwin L. Mechem, would name a successor—undoubtedly a Republican.

The Chavez issue could affect the control of the Senate. There now are 48 Democrats, including Chavez, 47 Republicans and one independent.

Collision in Midair Brings Death to 3

TOKEKA, Kan., (AP)—Two B47 jet bombers apparently collided in the air southeast of here today and three men were killed when one of the planes crashed.

The second bomber landed safely at Wichita Air Force Base with no injured aboard but the plane's tail was damaged.

A spokesman at nearby Forbes Air Force Base said the plane that crashed was on fire when it hit.

Three bodies were recovered from the wreckage, the spokesman said.

Schene of the crash was three miles north and three miles east of Overbrook.

Witnesses in the area told Air Force officers at Forbes they believed a man may have parachuted out of the plane farther north.

A B47 swept-wing bomber normally carries a crew of three but can carry a fourth.

Wreck on 29 Leaves One Person Injured

Three Hope Men escaped critical injury about 7:30 a. m. today when a pickup truck driven by Lum Rateliff and a Coca Cola Bottling truck driven by Ervin Yarberry collided at the Highway 29 and Spring Hill turnoff.

Investigating officers Sgt. Milton Mosier and Deputy Sheriff Tom Middlebrooks said the soft drink truck was crossing the highway and Rateliff was traveling along 29.

Rateliff and Yarberry escaped with bruises while a passenger in the pickup truck, Burnice Honea, sustained a severe arm injury and possible broken ribs.

The pickup was badly damaged but the soft drink truck came out a little better. Both had to be towed into Hope.

At Hervey and Division Streets this morning a Negro School bus driven by H. W. White and an auto driven by J. W. Graham collided with slight damage resulting, City police reported.

Yesterday at Division and Walnut autos driven by Mrs. J. E. Allen and R. M. Cook collided but only minor damage was the result.

Democrats Not to Accept Ike's Tax Formula

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Democrats refused today to accept President Eisenhower's formula for taxes "fair to all" and made plans to press their drive to cut income taxes by boosting exemptions.

They demanded and got free radio and television time tonight to answer the President's statement opposing any "unsound tax proposal." Three congressional spokesmen will present the Democrats' case from 9 to 9:15 p. m. EST.

Democrats generally claimed the President's grass-roots appeal last night hadn't changed any votes in the house where debate on the income tax issue starts tomorrow.

But Republicans counted heavily on Mr. Eisenhower's request that the "unsound proposal" be rejected by Congress. They hoped the address would turn the tide against the Democrats tax plan.

The Democratic aim is to knock out of a pending big tax revision bill a section easing the tax load on income from dividends, and to substitute their plan to increase each personal exemption from $600 to $700.

Mr. Eisenhower denounced this as unfair. He said it would let some taxpayers off entirely, while others made up the loss. He said it would wreck his efforts to balance the budget and bring back deficit spending.

TOKYO (UP)—Twenty-three Japanese fishermen, their skins burned black, hands swollen and hair falling from what Japanese scientists said are radiation burns, today claimed they were trapped in a radioactive dust storm from an American atom bomb test last March 1.

The Japanese government asked the United States for a report on the warnings issued in advance of the explosion of what apparently was a super-strength nuclear device in the Marshall Islands atomic test site.

One of the Japanese, Sanjiro Masuda, still was under hospital treatment today. A United Press photographer who took his picture said his entire face, was burned black, his ears were covered with pus scabs and his hands were badly swollen.

McNeill; secretary, Mrs. Sam Strong; treasurer, Mrs. Perry Moses; parliamentarian, Mrs. Oliver Adams; historian, Mrs. George Robison.

Mrs. Jim McKenzie had charge of the program and introduced the guests who were to participate in a panel discussion. The guests were Judge James Pilkinton, Rev. V. D. Keeley and Charles Gough, recreational director.

The subject for discussion was "Juvenile Protection in Our Community". After an interesting discussion with participation by the audience, the meeting was adjourned with the P. T. A. benediction. A social period followed with the one hundred and twenty-five members and guests being invited to the library where refreshments were served.

Lula McSwain Society
Meets in Emmet
Mrs. Ous Townsend was hostess to the Lula McSwain Society of Christian Service in her home in Emmet, on Monday afternoon, March 8.

The Townsend home was attractively decorated with arrangements of spring flowers that were placed at vantage points in the living room. The table in the dining room was covered with a hand crocheted cloth and held an arrangement of tinted flowers which carried out the Saint Patrick's Day color scheme.

The business session was opened with prayer led by Mrs. Tom Garland. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and they were approved. After the various officers gave their reports old and new business was discussed.

The program entitled "Latin Americans Along the Mexican Border" was presented by the program chairman, Mrs. Shelby Jones. After the opening hymn, scripture lesson and prayer, the leader presented a panel discussion. She was assisted by Mesdames Bob Magness, Karl Weeks and Denman Wylie.

The program was concluded with a hymn, prayer and the reading of a poem by the leader.

One guest, Mrs. Basil Munn, and twenty-one members were served refreshments by the hostess, Mrs. Bob Magness presided at the punch bowl. The St. Patrick's Day motif was further used in the refreshments.

Papa first stares at this feminine treasure hunt with masculine indignation. Then the virus hits him. He drops into a liquor store for a free sample and a chance to rest his feet, and comes out carrying five bottles of duty-free booze. Frances and I went ashore at Willemstad in Curacao, the quaint and picturesque center of the Dutch (West) Indies, with two friends we had made during the cruise, Eileen and Tom Smith of Tulsa, Okla.

"One of the most beautiful places we've ever seen," our wives agreed. Tom and I then pointed out that in three hours the group of us had never moved more than 100 feet from the center of town, and our dearest memories of storied old Curacao would be based on the inside of three silver stores and two perfume shops.

"But we found what we wanted," said Eileen. Tom and I had to admit that, after all, culture had no profounder reward than that. The only way to cure a wife with the "buy-buy fever" on a cruise is to hand her your pocketbook and let the disease take its course.

KILL WITH CARE

BY HUGH LAWRENCE NELSON

No one saw the actual attack. Any outcry he might have made was choked completely by the noise of the crowd.

THE STORY: Jim Dunn, a private detective, was in Colorado City to attend the wedding of his friend, Lieutenant Mark Richards, when Chief of Police Otto Drover was murdered. The chief's daughter was with Jim at the reception when she received the news that her father had been stabbed.

Nancy Drover sat huddled in the back of the back seat of the police sedan, while officer Early drove slowly through the tree-lined residential section of Colorado City. Jim Dunn held one of the hands in a grip of companion, at a time when there was on loneliness. The girl's body shook spasmodically, but she was dry-eyed.

"The wedding," Nancy said, "I didn't go to."

"We haven't tried to get in touch with him," Early said. "Not yet. I was careful not to say where he was going. But don't worry. He'll be here to take charge."

"No," Nancy said firmly. "No, you mustn't do that to him. He's got to go. Not right away. Drive us to headquarters, Tim."

Early looked at Jim for guidance and Dunn nodded. There could be activity and motion to distract Nancy's mind. He would take her to a position where he might be of some help in the investigation. And Dr. Pardon would be there eventually, to minister to her.

On the occasion arose, Jim knew Nancy's strength of character, of all the people with even this situation what hurt him, deeply was the necessity for draining away strength and energy in such a cause, the necessary blunting and bending of certain responses and instincts.

"It must be best for a while," Jim said.

Early drove swiftly along the paved tunnel formed by the arch of leaves and branches. Nancy Drover broke the silence once, spoke as much to herself as to the others. "Dad did have something on his mind. I'm sure now, I know."

The outer offices looked as if a tornado had gone through, and with it all the personnel except a uniformed man at the switchboard. Mayor Edward Stone came out of an inside office, looking momentarily more cheerful at sight of someone else, then returned to his lost expression of bewilderment.

"Miss Drover, I can't tell you—sorry—I know words don't mean anything."

Nancy nodded.

Stone turned to the two men. "She shouldn't be here."

"I asked," Nancy said. "I want to know."

Mayor Edward Stone was a tall man, with tufts of gray hair over each of his protruding ears, bald otherwise. His large horn-rimmed glasses perched on his book of a nose, and gave him a bird-of-prey expression. He was tall and thin, and his body stooped as if it had learned early in life the necessity of dodging overhead objects designed for people of lesser stature. His brown eyes once seen without the distorting barrier of lenses, craved a nitric the vulpine idea. They were deep set understanding and combined with the lines in his face to give an impression of sympathy, of knowledge of the crisis which life held in store for everyone who lived. Firsthand knowledge gained bitterly.

Obviously Stone was trying to place Jim. They shook hands while Early was getting a "nothing new" report from the operator.

Early said, "This is a break for us, Mr. Mayor. Having Dunn here, I mean. He helped us out before on a murder case. Maybe he can help again."

"A policeman?"

"Private detective," Jim said and tried to keep all defensiveness from his voice.

Stone said, "I see." He went on quickly. "We'll be glad of all the help we can get. But I hope to be able to get in touch with Lieutenant Richards to take charge."

"Please—no," Nancy said. "Let him have a little time at least."

Stone smiled at the girl. "We'll see. I appreciate your idea, your thoughts of others. Frankly, I do not know much about what happened. I only arrived here a few moments ago myself. Sergeant Early, I believe you have been more or less in charge."

"About the way to put it," Early admitted.

"Good," Mayor Stone said briskly. "Let's go in, an office where we can sit down."

It was perhaps inadvertent that the office chosen was that of Chief Drover, Nancy made no objection. A sound. She did look up at Jim as he helped her with a chair and her eyes were huge in her drawn face.

Early got right to business. "As you know, Mayor Stone, the minute I got in touch with you, I was told to come here and take charge. I'd already started things, and I had managed to get a few facts from the scene of the crime. I'll try to give them to you."

Apparently Chief Drover had driven directly downtown from the wedding reception. He had parked his car, where it had later been found, in the Holt Block, and had walked north on Holt Avenue. A triple bill of horror pictures was being featured at a matinee at the Nugget Theater, with the doors to open at 1:45. There was a large crowd of young people, and two men had appeared suddenly and begun throwing out candy to the crowd. Descriptions of these two men varied a little to size but the general idea had been similar. The men, who wore loose concealing smocks, were also outfitted in crude wigs of coarse yarn under conical hats. Their features were distorted by the long, protruding teeth described variously as from one to three inches in length. They both wore yellow gloves, and they made curious noises and hideous grimaces at a crowd while distributing the candy.

The cashier, of course, had joined in the general belief that this was a publicity stunt, although she admitted she thought it odd the manager had not mentioned it to her. The manager himself, when finally reached at the reception, denied any knowledge of such a stunt, but was presently being held for further questioning.

Chief Drover had had difficulty making his way through the pushing crowd. The two "monsters" obliged by tossing out handfuls of candy so a path was cleared for him. In fact, they formed a gibbering escort for him, and everyone had a good laugh.

No one saw the actual attack. Chief Drover stopped moving abruptly. Any outcry he might have made was choked completely by the noise of the young people. He staggered a few steps, turned partway round and fell to the side walk.

His fall, as well as the commotion caused by the candy scam, had diverted any attention from the escape of the two "monsters." A crowd had gathered around the fallen man at once, but it was some little time before anything serious was suspected. The single stab wound had bled hardly more than enough to dampen the dark cloth of Drover's suit. According to a first examination by Dr. Pardon the murder weapon was something in the nature of an ice pick.

Every available man on the force had been called out. The neighborhood was being combed painstakingly. So far no one had been found who had noticed the escape of the two men.

Disagreement Brings Slaying

MORRILLTON, (AP) — Sheriff Marlin Hawkins said a long-standing disagreement over property lines apparently led to the fatal shooting yesterday of Floyd C. Williams of the Birdtown Community near here.

Hawkins said William C. Simmons, 45, admitted shooting the 51-year-old Williams. The two men owned adjoining farms.

Simmons drove into Morrilton and surrendered shortly after the shooting.

Coroner Robert Harris said Williams was struck in the chest by a shotgun charge.

The sheriff said Simmons is being held in jail here without charge pending further investigation.
